

The image shows a ledger page with a header '600' in the top left corner. The page is divided into a grid of columns and rows. There are four main vertical columns, each defined by a double-line border. The first column is the narrowest, followed by a wider column, then another narrow column, and finally the widest column on the right. There are also several narrow columns on the far right side. The grid is mostly empty, with some faint horizontal lines visible across the page.
