

A message from
Tim Mattice, Executive Director

WELCOME to Denver for the Election Center's 37th Annual National Conference.

Denver, the capital of Colorado, is an American metropolis dating to the Old West era. Larimer Square, the city's oldest block, features landmark 19th-century buildings. Museums include the Denver Art Museum, an ultramodern complex known for its collection of indigenous works, and the mansion of famed Titanic survivor Molly Brown. Denver is also a jumping off point for ski resorts in the nearby Rocky Mountains.

At this year's Conference we will explore opportunities, resources and best practices leading to success in the 2022 Midterm Elections.

We will host the vendor exhibit area featuring voting system support and services.

We will honor the winners of the Election Center's Professional Practices Papers' Program (PPP) with innovative programs and ideas submitted by your colleagues in jurisdictions around the country. All PPP submissions will be featured on the Election Center website following the conference.

We will be celebrating those graduating from the Professional Education Program with the designation of Certified Elections Registration Administrator (CERA) or Certified Elections Registration Vendor (CERV).

The graduates will be recognized at a special ceremony and luncheon on Tuesday.

At the end of the formal conference program, we offer an optional tour on Wednesday so you can partake in the culture and fun of what Denver has to offer. You will enjoy the amenities of The Grand Hyatt Hotel conveniently located downtown Denver.

DO NOT DELAY, make your reservations on the Election Center website electioncenter.org TODAY. If you have questions about the conference please contact the Election Center team at services@electioncenter.org or call 281-396-4309. See you in Denver!

IMPORTANT DEADLINE INFORMATION

Course Descriptions

All classes held:
Saturday, August 20: 9:00am - 4:30pm | Sunday, August 21: 8:00am - 11:00am

Course 5 Ethics in Election & Voter Registration Administration

Instructor: Dr. Jon Fisk, Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama
As with all professionals, election administrators and election officials may not fully understand or appreciate their duties and obligations without also understanding the disciplinary rules and ethical mandates governing their professional activities. Yet professional codes of ethics may have the complexion of arbitrary prescriptions and proscriptions unless those parameters are founded upon well-reasoned and generally accepted ethical precepts. This course will be concerned with identifying and explaining those precepts and with connecting those precepts to the Principles and Standards of Conduct for Elections and Registration Officials.

Course 6 Communications in Election & Voter Registration Administration

Instructor: Ryan Williamson, Ph.D., Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama
Effective communication with the media, state legislatures, and local boards and other entities involved with elections and voter registration is critical to maintaining budget and public support for the electoral process and for effective voter outreach and other public relations purposes. This course discusses effective communication with the media, state legislatures, local boards, and other entities involved with elections or voter registration which is critical to maintaining budget and public support for the electoral process and for effective voter outreach and other public relations purposes. This course will provide the skills and principles important to effective representation of elections/registration departments and offices.

CREDIT FOR THIS COURSE IS GIVEN ONLY TO GRADUATE STUDENTS RENEWING THEIR CERA/CERV STATUS

Course 18 Conflict Management

Instructor: Dr. John Morris, Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama
The responsibilities of elections and voter registration officials take place in a high stress environment with demands and pressures from voters, candidates, legislators, media, and other government agencies. Most of those who interact with elections officials know little about the process of administering elections, the deadline pressures, the budget constraints and the staffing problems. Nevertheless, election officials are expected to be efficient, thorough, fair, open, understanding. In a given election cycle, candidates can err, voters can ignore instructions, the media can present inaccurate information, yet all parties expect election and voter registration administrators to perform flawlessly. This course discusses how to operate in such an environment where expectations are so high, buck-passing is rampant, and stress is maximized. It will focus on conflict management and how to take the regular crisis (and the really big one) of work in elections and handle them with professionalism, tact, and wisdom. The course will include a number of exercises to develop skills in active listening, communication, and conflict resolution.

CREDIT FOR THIS COURSE IS GIVEN ONLY TO GRADUATE STUDENTS RENEWING THEIR CERA/CERV STATUS

Course 35 (NEW) Reframing the Public Narrative: Integrity, Ethics, and Communication

Instructor: Dr. Mitchell Brown, Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama
This course brings together communications, integrity, and ethics to help election officials navigate and reform public facing conversations about election quality, transparency, and results. As a renewal course, the subject matter builds upon the basics of communications and ethics covered in the core CERA/CERV curriculum and extends them to consider and examine their intersection to help transform how we talk to and with the public, media, and policy makers about the work that elections officials do. In this course, participants will workshop public information messages and communications strategies specific to today's environment.
